

Being a licensed ham radio operator and a licensed FCC communications engineer, I am strongly against this technology deployment, as it will definitely cause interference to other services. The commission appears to be displaying a lack of technical expertise in the decision making area lately.